Listening to Electric Current.
An interesting electrical experiment, illustrating the fact that sound accompanies the passage of electricity through the body, can be shown in the following manner: Let two persons each hold an electrode from a small magneto or shocking coil. Let one person, with his free hand, touch the other person behind and just below the ear. A buzzing sound, otherwise inaudible, can be heard. The tone of the sound depends upon the number of interruptions of the current.—Popular Science Monthly.

Those Mexican Names.
Mexican names that are euphonious in Spanish are awkward when pronounced as in English. The vowels have the same sound as in German. J has the sound of a strongly aspirated H, and H is mute. The double R is rolled, and the double L is followed by the consonant sound of X. The accent is on the ultimate when the word ends in a consonant, usually of the penultimate when ending in a vowel. Exceptions are indicated by use of the accent mark.

CITIZENS CAN HELP WITH HOME COMING

COOPERATION OF EVERY JANESVILLE RESIDENT NEEDED TO MAKE EVENT A BIG SUCCESS.

WILL SEND IN NAMES

List of Former Janesville Residents to Be Invited Will Be Compiled By Commercial Club Sec. retary.

The first real active work on plans for the Home Coming, which occurs at the same time that the big Janesville Fair, which is in progress August 11, were gone over last evening at a meeting of the Home Coming committee held in the office of the Parker Pen company. Everything points to a successful event, but to make it the biggest social event that has occurred in the city in some years it will be necessary to have the personal co-operation of every citizen of this community. There is no question but that the friends of your friends, those who were former Janesville residents, will be mighty glad to shift their plans to make the intended visit to Janesville at the time there, even though the present arrangements did not include the Janesville visit until later in the year and possible next year.

The Home Coming offers a renewal of acquaintance which every person who loves his home town appreciates highly and to the end that as many of the Janesvillians may be apprized of the event, the committee asks the hearty co-operation of every Janesville citizen and asks that they make it a special matter of business of sending the names and addresses of those friends whom they know to the secretary of the Commercial club at once, so that a detailed invitation and description of what will occur during the Home Coming may be sent to each one. To that end a coupon will be printed in each issue of the Gazette, which can be used to include the names and addresses of friends. This should be mailed at once to the secretary of the Commercial club, Janesville. This evening there will be delivered to Gazette readers in Janesville a card which will provide space for the insertion of names and addresses of your friends, so that this can be conveniently filled out and returned at once to Secretary Kuhn.

The committee plans on arranging a program which will be interesting not only to former Janesville people, but to those who live here at the present time. There are many famous people in the country who claim Janesville as their home town and it is the hope of the committee that these may be interested in providing something of unusual interest to all. The usual registration of former residents will be made so that quick communication can be secured and other conveniences provided so that the Home Coming will be a matter of pleasant memory after the event is passed. In connection with the Janesville Fair, those who make the trip back home will find a double attraction. The principal matter of importance at the present time is list of former residents and their addresses. Please assist the committee by doing your share quickly.

Fill in and mail to PETER V. KUHN, Secretary, JANESVILLE COMMERCIAL CLUB, Janesville, Wis. I am sending herewith the names of former Janesville residents to whom I wish you would send an invitation and information about the Big HOME COMING.

Name. Address.

SHOPIERE'S PICNIC WILL ATTRACT MANY

Many Visitors and Old Residents Are Expected to Attend Community Field Celebration Tomorrow.

Shooper's annual community field picnic will undoubtedly be one of the biggest and best celebrations of its kind ever held in Rock county or even in the state. The committee in charge completed their plans today and by tonight everything will be in complete readiness for tomorrow's program. All activities will take place in Spicer's grove which is located near the railroad station on the Shoreline road. The first number on the program will begin at ten thirty o'clock and then the afternoon games will take place for everyone. At ten thirty o'clock the married men will meet the boys in a baseball game. Paul Cox will lead the married men and William Howard is listed as captain for the singles. It is expected that the baseball contest will continue the morning's fun and at the noon hour a basket lunch will be served. Everyone attending should make sure that they bring a well-filled basket. Group games, consisting of dodge ball, running, and other games will be held as a settler for the dinner. After indulging in these contests every one will be in trim for the track and field events.

In this event a hundred and fifty teams will be staged. There will also be a relay race between different teams and a pole vaulting contest. The volleyball teams are matched as follows: Janesville vs. Beloit; Clinton vs. Shooper. The big event for the afternoon will be the football game between the Rock Prairie and Shooper's A. M. C. A. groups. These teams have been on edge for the past few days waiting for this contest. The rivalry is keen and there is sure to be a closely fought contest.

Charles Shimeall has an expert lot of rope pullers and tomorrow they will go against another expert lot. A number of Janesville people will attend Shooper's celebration tomorrow and already a number of people have called on the Commercial club saying that they were willing to take all persons out in their cars. If anyone else has room in their car for extra passengers and are willing to take them they are asked to call up the Commercial club. Action would be very much appreciated by the picnic committee.

THIS POEM IS OFTEN QUOTED

"Out Where the West Begins" Seems to Have Touched Men's Hearts All Over the World.

In the American Magazine is an account of Arthur Chapman, a Denver newspaper man, whose poem, entitled "Out Where the West Begins," appeared in the Denver Tribune in 1910. Chapman has been reminded of his poem ten thousand times since. For the verses were just starting on the grand tour that has made them the most popular bit of fugitive verse since Riley was in his prime. The New York Sun, which has always had an eye alert to the merits of Chapman's column, ran next week "Out Where the West Begins." Since then almost every paper of consequence in the country has repeated the little poem.

Denote Progress by Slang

Every Season Sees New Verbal Inventions Which Next Season Relegate to Realm of Obsolete.

If the defenders of slang did not try to prove so much, they would have a stronger case. It is mere enthusiasm that leads the Nashville Tennessean, for instance, to insist that "slang has contributed to English a thousand worth while and workable words for every such word contributed by science." Slang is strong on contribution, but weak on staying power. Every season sees new verbal inventions which the next season relegate to the realm of the obsolete. The words added by science may be less colorful, although this is not invariably true, but they do not vanish away so rapidly. We may say "phone" for "telephone" and "auto" for "automobile," but the great mass of terms brought into the language by scientific discovery and invention do not undergo even the process of abbreviation, nor can slang be upheld upon the ground which the Tennessean is momentarily plausible. The reason for the transient character of slang words, it thinks, is that "there come new ideas that must be named. The idea has its little day and passes out of the life of the people. With the idea passes the name of that idea." On the contrary, the new slang nothing but new names for old ideas. Slang is an endless procession of re-dressing ideas in new clothes. What erstwhile was "ginger" has become "pep." "Boodlers" are transformed into "gray wolves." It is no longer good form to speak of "hitting it up," one is "going some." Such is the "progress" denoted by the changes in slang.—New York Post.

THIRD REGIMENT TO GO VIA JANESVILLE

Last of Wisconsin Troops Entrain Wednesday for Border—Many Fail to Pass Medical Tests.

The third regiment, Wisconsin National Guard, the last of the border troops to leave Camp Douglas for the border, will pass through this city Wednesday afternoon. The regiment is scheduled to enter in three sections over the Northwestern road, the first leaving Camp Douglas at ten a. m., the second at 12 noon and the third at 2 p. m. The first section will stop at South Janesville for ice and water. The troops are said to be routed over the Rock Island out of field. Col. Richards, his staff and companies A, B, C and D, will go in the first section.

The supply company, machine gun company and companies E, F, G and H, Major W. Burton Hudson commanding, will make up the second section, and companies I, K, L and M, Major Marshall Cousins, commanding, will go in the last section. In all, 1,059 men and thirty machine guns will make the trip. They will be paid by the state just before leaving.

The third regiment, examined in the intense heat on Monday, suffered the worst assaults on its ranks of any regiment encamped at Camp Douglas. When the report of the federal examining surgeons was received by Col. R. A. Richards, it was found that a captain and three lieutenants had been plucked from their commands. They are: Captain Guy F. Goodell, Co. F, of Portage, who has a weak heart; Lieutenant F. J. Drake, Co. G, of Waukegan; and Lieutenant Johnson, Co. H, of Eau Claire, and Lieut. Fred. Harrows, Co. K, of Tomah, all of whom are decidedly under weight.

In the past 200 men were weeded out by the examiners.

FOODS THEY BUILD OR DESTROY

Amazing but rarely suspected truths about the things you eat.

By ALFRED W. McCANN (Copyright, 1916, by Alfred W. McCann.)

CHAPTER 82.

The school teachers and their pupils can conduct poison squad experiments over long periods which will actually substitute scientific and reliable information for the so-called scientific but unreliable data now available.

Through the awakening of the school teacher the school children will learn why gluttony is one of the seven deadly sins.

They will learn that all nature is conspiring to teach them the folly of eating against the natural law in respect to food.

They will learn that there is something erroneous about the popular conception of gluttony when it is looked upon as the act by which an African warrior, eating and eating and eating, succeeds in so distending himself with food that he can't walk; or as the act of a Hibernian who enters an oyster eating contest and succeeds in eating oysters until the count runs up into a dozen empty pails and a mountain of shells.

They will learn that gluttony is not at all that horrifying spectacle witnessed at a New England pie-eating contest, in which a group of animals and creatures with large bellies and small brains succeed in putting away dozens of soggy mixtures of flour, fat and pie fruit, consisting of the runny, chilled rejects of the canner fruit industry.

They will learn that gluttony is not the effort of the small boy who occasionally tries to see how many apples he can demolish or how many apple dumplings he can hold or how many peanuts he can consume and not bust.

They will learn that these are not samples of gluttony at all, but that gluttony is a commonplace, every-day occurrence, the standard of which are not the occasional picturesque specimens that attract newspaper attention.

They will learn that gluttony is the deliberate and wilful act based on ignorance, indifference, or sloth, where by an otherwise rational human creature refuses in his selection of food to recognize the fact that the laws of nutrition which apply to the health and success of the stock farmer also apply to him by reason of which he thoughtlessly eats and causes his children to eat those things which he would not dream of allowing his stock farm manager to feed to poultry, hogs, cattle, sheep or hogs.

They will learn that gluttony is qualitative, not quantitative, and that one can be actually dainty at table eating with a charm that engages the admiration of the dining room while counting scores of fourth part portions of an average meal in the grossest degree.

They will learn that it is quite impossible as a regular daily occupation to eat too much of the right kind of food.

They will learn that the right kind of food nourishes and invigorates, and that the wrong kind of food causes functional excitement.

They will learn that functional excitement is not true invigoration, and that such functional excitement manifests itself in many morbid ways.

They will learn that true invigoration is restful and normal, and is never tempted to excess.

They will learn that the wolf, hyena and vulture in the Zoo gorge themselves on the one-sided diet thrown to them by the animal keepers.

And the tiger paces restlessly in the cage, the deer, the bison, the camel and the elephant remain in a state of repose.

They will learn that by the merest accident it has become customary to feed the bear, bison, deer, elephant and camel with foods natural to their needs, and that in the case of the vulture, light, panther and wolf only one-half of their natural food is given to them.

They will learn that these carnivorous animals in captivity do not consume the food and bones of their victims as they do in the jungle or in the forest.

They will learn that the blood and the base-forming foods of the carnivorous animals, and that grasses are the base-forming foods of the herbivorous animal.

They will learn that flesh is the acid forming food of the carnivorous animal and that the seeds of grasses are the acid forming foods of the herbivorous animal.

They will learn that the herbivorous animals eat both grasses and seeds of grasses even in captivity, and, that, therefore, their diet is balanced, whereas in the case of car-poused upon them is unbalanced by reason of which they are ushered into a state of involuntary gluttony, with all the woes that follow.

They will learn that man chooses gluttony for himself by closing his eyes to truth, a condition which made it necessary for the department of education of New York city to devote an entire week, during the month of May, 1915, to the discussion of but one form of the ravages which the human family is cursed by gluttony, defective teeth.

In their study of gluttony the school children will look into others' mouths and study each other's teeth. In doing so they will recall the experience of the Maderia-Mamore poison squad, in which 4,000 men, living on food supplied them by the wholesale grocers of New York city, died while building 232 miles of railway.

In recalling the experiences of the Kronprinz Wilhelm poison squad, which made a wild dash to port with 120 victims of food folly aboard, the school children will contrast the facts developed by feeding 500 men through-out an enforced fast, the experience endured for 255 days with the consequences of the short-time nutritional experiments such as those conducted in the mercantile laboratories and by the reference board, in which after a few short weeks diet on some one suspected food adjunct a whitewashing report which means nothing is given to the world.

They will grasp the fact that at the end of 150 days a clean bill of health could have been given to the food of the sailors of the Kronprinz Wilhelm, thereby reducing that now classic episode to the class of unsatisfactory and resultless short term scientific experiments.

THE REST ROOM.

While this invitation is not authorized by the ladies of the City Federation, the Gazette is certain that they would be pleased to have all citizens use their newly established rest rooms in the Myers theatre block on East Milwaukee street, as inspection for themselves the conveniences they have established there for the accommodation of the visitors.

It has been an undertaking for these ladies to arrange for the establishment of a municipal rest room. It did not meet with the approval of all the ladies of the various clubs, and while the majority of the club women of the city have espoused the cause with the work others have taken a different attitude and played no part in the work at hand.

It was no easy task to obtain the funds necessary to carry on the work for one experimental year's demonstration of the true value to the community. As in the case in every undertaking the merchants have been called on to contribute and they have answered the appeal. The money subscribed will be utilized in paying for the furnishings and for the various expenses entailed.

The room has been open but a short week thus far and while over a thousand availed themselves of its facilities on the Fourth and many of these visitors have returned again to the city, the majority of the citizens do not know the true worth of such an establishment in Janesville. This is perhaps an off season, but still each day shows that many strangers are accommodated. Strangers given much desired information and tired mothers with children a few minutes' needed rest after a tiresome journey by auto or wagon to the city.

Its uses are manifold and will become more apparent as the days go by and the public understands its workings. Meanwhile, become acquainted with its location, investigate for yourself its accommodations and then you will be better prepared to pass judgment. It is a civic necessity, only it took the ladies of the city to demonstrate to the citizens generally that it was needed and could be accomplished.

PREPAREDNESS.

Janesville had its first taste of war when the troop trains passed through here Saturday and "Johnny Was Off to the War" having many a girl behind him. Just at this time with our armed military forces on the border, with much talk of war and strife, the report of the conference on National Preparedness, which contains some interesting facts and figures that are surprising to the average layman who imagine all this nation had to do was to declare war, organize its troops and start fighting. It is interesting. It is a telling argument for preparedness and is in part as follows:

"England has one and one-half million trained soldiers who are drilling without rifles. Russia—though the war has been under way two years—has more than three million soldiers armed. The present advances of Russia in the east are made possible only by the shipment of rifles and munitions from Japan.

"Not a single one of the great quantities of rifles ordered in this country two years ago has yet reached the fighting fronts of the allies, though these rifles are at last commencing to go forward in large numbers.

"These conditions show the utter folly of our own people taking refuge or comfort in the thought that we can prepare in a condition of mind. The whole theory of defense is to be so prepared that no one will start trouble with us. European war orders have helped us toward preparedness by showing our industrial incapacity. Soon we will be able to turn out rifles in respectable quantities and shells in better quantities, than would have been otherwise possible—but this is concerning the United States that are able to make artillery and we make so few rifle cartridges that the quantity has never been enough to warrant either Great Britain or Russia shipping American cartridges to the front.

"Our rifle cartridges are used for target practice only. Therefore, while we have rifles, we have nothing to shoot out of them.

"It is no fight of fancy to say that a regiment without many machine guns now is well nigh unprepared. Three motorcycle scouts not long ago are said to have wiped out with machine guns, an entire German regiment as it was marching into a village, actually killing every member. Germany had 50,000 machine guns at the beginning of the war. Great Britain had but 450. Compared with the equipment of European powers, 5,000 machine guns would be a very small number for our army. A machine gun of the best type shoots 700 rifle cartridges a minute, or over 1,000,000 in twenty-four hours. But there are only five concerns in the United States which make these cartridges and only one firm can turn out 1,000,000 a day. While it is true that a machine gun will be in actual operation use its theoretical consumption, it is also evident that machine guns will be of little value to us until we have a large number of factories able to feed them.

"Just here, reference to our shipment of powder to Europe again misleads us because our production of explosives is dependent upon nitrates imported from Chile and in the event of a sudden attack of the enemy would immediately seek to stop the importation of this necessary ingredient.

"Though we possess half the industrial equipment of the world, we do not know how to use it for national defense, and to learn how to swing it into defensive work is a big job. Individual realization of that fact is a long step toward preparedness. Had England and Russia realized that the transition of their manufacturers from making ordinary lines to the things needed by armies and navies was a tremendous task, the European war would have ended long ago, if it had ever begun.

"The industrial education and mobilization of our industries is to be accomplished through the placing of educational orders with all of those industries that would be required to serve us in time of need.

"There will be no profit in these trial orders, for in the majority of cases manufacturers will be called upon to manufacture articles entirely foreign to their normal production, but in doing so there lies an opportunity for the captains of industry and for the men at the benches to render invaluable service in the work of national defense. On the degree of intelligence and fidelity to the cause which surrounds this phase of work, will depend in a very large measure, the future of America."

OUTVERNES VERNE.

When Jules Verne wrote his famous story, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," it was considered a most extravagant tale. It was looked on library shelves, as was his "Round the World in Eighty Days" and his "Up to the Moon." Yet all his fancies have been realized. He was not such a dreamer, perhaps, after all—merely a crystal gazer who looked into the future. The arrival of the German U-boat Deutschland in Baltimore harbor has equalled the wonderful journey of Captain Nemo under the sea. The world has been circled in less than eighty days and the airships, while they have not yet reached the moon, have ascended to wonderful heights.

Had the German submarine liner arrived in this country a year ago, with its cargo and wonderful trip to relate it might have put a far different interpretation upon international relations. Coming as it does, now, it will seriously complicate matters and cause no little bit of uneasiness on the part of the federal government, which has been seeking to maintain a semblance of neutrality to say the least.

It was a wonderful journey this submarine took. It is an event in the history of the world. One of the developments of the European war, which promises to be equalled by the world's freight craft which is to leave Germany shortly on its experimental voyage to this country by the air route. England may be mistress of the seas yet, but Germany has demonstrated that she is mistress of its depths.

VACATIONS.

The custom of taking summer vacations has become more than ever general as time has gone on. Most business and professional people get their two weeks or more of holiday. The farmer, with his crops hanging in the balance, is in no mood just now for outings. But his time will come in winter when mother nature is taking her rest.

The majority of the factories and mills have as yet created no regular system for vacations for their work people. Yet a good many of them stop a week ostensibly for stock-taking. Probably the general in the shut-down. There are so many alternations of bad and good times, that the average employee may get as the years go more vacation than he wants, so he is inclined to work while the wheels are turning.

There is a saying that the man who never takes a vacation takes one all the time. There is a good deal in it. It is probably true that a man can do as much in fifty weeks' work in the year as he can in fifty-two. The mind gets dalled and the spirit of ambition palls if there is no let-up in the grind.

The business man who favors keeping up his athletic training is usually the same one who after a picnic applies at the drug store for arnica, witch hazel, or other healing material for a friction rub.

The noble Caranza troops will start in search of the handis as soon as the red and yellow sashes and hand-bands are delivered.

It must be embarrassing to the guests at the summer hotels to have to give the orders to college girl waiters who know how to pronounce the menus.

On the Spur of the Moment

ROY K. MOULTON

REINCARNATION

When I am dodging touring cars To get across the street, And bending jumping here and there Upon elastic feet, It often has occurred to me, Perhaps it has to you, That in the other life I was A jumping kangaroo.

When traveling around the state In prohibition towns, Where even the soda fountain winked And hid with frigid frowns, When for a who's week at a stretch, A thirst I must endure, I feel that in the other life I was A camel sure.

I sometimes think I used to swing From trees and wear a tail, And chatter language similar, If present signs don't fail. There are some indications that Cling fast, 'tis plain to see, It's still quite possible to make A monkey out of me.

INVENTIONS

We have long been the clearing house for inventions. Many of them are submitted to us by the inventors in our locality before anybody else has time to see them. Some of the new and needed things shown us since May 1st this year are the following:

A luminous keyhole which can be visible in the night. It is impossible to miss this keyhole no matter what may be your condition. The key is magnetically attracted to the keyhole and it matters not where you are, the door will open. The man who showed us this invention hoped to make a million dollars out of it. We think he is too modest. Ten million sounds more like it.

A hat lifting device which will enable a man to lift his hat when he has a baby on one arm and fifteen packages of groceries on the other. He merely drops and rubs his right foot along the calf of his leg and the friction generates the electricity which operates the hat-lifting device. Thus he can always be polite though very busy.

A punctureless automobile tire. This tire is made of a solid roll of chilled steel instead of rubber and is guaranteed to be free from blowouts.

PICNICS

I never saw a picnic spread That did not have among the eats Some peanut butter on the bread And many plates of pickled beets.

—Youngstown Telegram

And as for the picnics spread I know Of many jaunty little trips; Where all they had was just a row Of boxes of potato chips.

—Birmingham Age-Herald.

I never to a picnic went— And this is true, I hope to die— At which a summer-pauper got Sat down in a soft custard pie.

—Houston Daily Post.

The picnics don't appeal to me, With wasps and other bugs that sting, And garter snakes and flies and skeels And ants all over everything.

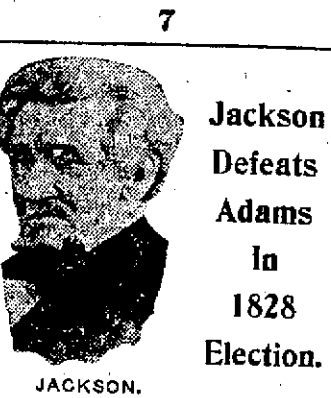

GET BUSY

Boost, and the world boosts with you Knock, and you're on the shelf; For the world gets sick of one who'll kick And wishes he'd kick himself. Boost when the sun is shining, Boost when it starts to rain. If you happen to fall, don't lie there and bawl, But get up and boost again. Boost for your own advancement, Boost for the things sublime; For the chap who's found on the top-most round Is a booster every time.

THE QUESTION IS: WHAT IS IT UNTIL IT'S 4 MONTHS OLD

A Dog in Janesville is Not a Dog Until It's Quarter of a Year Old.

Who'll Give the Answer?

When is a dog not a dog? This question was answered in municipal court, this morning, by City Attorney William H. Dougherty.

Information of those who do not know a dog's not a dog until it is four months old.

Between the date of its birth and its "dog days" the city's legal light offered no explanation as to just what "it" was.

The definition was brought out when three were before Judge Maxwell on charges of violation of the dog ordinance. Eight warrants were issued to Chief Champion yesterday following as many complaints to City Clerk J. Peter Hamilton.

James McKewin, William B. Frey and Arthur Ward all entered not guilty pleas when their case was called this morning. The other five are to appear later.

Frey said he had a beagle pup that was not yet four months old until it reached this maturity, he argued, he could not be held at fault since the ordinance specifies licenses for all canines over four months old.

Frey said he proposed to get a license for his hound about the first of August and, Dougherty then quoted, "if eventually, why not now?"

McKewin said he owned no dog but the dog at his place was the property of his sister. She secured a license yesterday afternoon.

Ward said the dog seen about his place was a wanderer and according to a milkman who lives next door, had followed the latter from somewhere in the ward.

The cases were held open until August first for further investigation. At that time it is expected that Frey's rabbit chaser will be tagged and that the stranger which found abode at Ward's will have moved on to new quarters.

Up to 10:30 o'clock this morning 478 owners had procured licenses, a gain of one hundred and twenty-four hours. Eight tags had been issued this morning.

Fresh air kiddies

Whole crowd of enthusiastic, bubbling youngsters reach city in Special Car Attached to Ten-Thirty Train.

Forty-five excited and bewildered little children from Chicago tenements arrived in the city this morning on the 10:30 train over the St. Paul road in search of fresh air and a good time during their two weeks' separation from the smoke and grime of the Windy City.

The children and their destinations were ascertained by means of tags which were fastened onto the coat or dress of each child. The children who had kindly volunteered to quarter one or more of the little ones, saw to it that conveyances were on hand to take the children to their homes of the next fortnight.

Any one of the persons who so generously donated toward this outing would have been repaid many times over by the look in the eyes of the child as the fact dawned on them that they were going to have a ride in an auto. Undoubtedly, it was the first joy many had.

Picnic outings into the country and matinees at theatres are in order at present. Five more children will arrive tomorrow, as they could not be taken this morning when the start was made.

The names of the people who will accommodate the children for the next two weeks are as follows:

Superintendent of the Chautauqua grounds, E. F. Fish, reports everything ready for the entertainment which commences July 20. The grounds have been put in excellent condition, and parking space arranged for to accommodate autos and horses.

This tent will be furnished with chairs, and couches, and a supply of fresh water will be kept on hand. This will be appreciated by the mothers who attend the Chautauqua with small children, who will find a great convenience to be able to avail themselves of its resources.

Also, tables have been provided for the use of pioneers, and those who wish to attend the afternoon and evening programs without returning home, are urged to bring their suppers with them.

Meanwhile, the season ticket sale is progressing, and the public is again reminded of the great saving made possible by the purchase of a season ticket, which sells for $1.50.

HAY MOW ACCIDENT

INJURES MAN'S BACK

Frank Connell, Lincoln Street, Hurt Near Clinton Yesterday.—Swinging Hay Fork Knocks Him Down.

Frank Connell, the son of Mrs. Mary Connell, 216 Cherry street, suffered a bad wrenching of the back yesterday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock, when he was mowing on a hay mow on a farm near Clinton. He was brought to Janesville and taken to Mercy hospital.

Examination last night showed that the man's back was not broken as was first thought. He suffered excruciating pain but is reported this afternoon to be resting somewhat easier.

The accident occurred on the farm of Fred Schroeder, about two miles from Clinton. Connell was helping with the haying and was in the mow placing the loads as they were elevated and swung back. In some manner, after he had neared the edge of the mow, the fork swung against him. He was unable to grasp anything and was knocked from the mow, falling a distance of between fifteen and twenty feet and alighting on his back.

"PASQUALE" MAKES EXCELLENT PHOTOPLAY

George Eban Wins Commendation of Apollo Audiences.

"Pasquale" ranks high as one of the superior photoplays of the year, not because of its pretentiousness or drama, but in simplicity and characterization. The Apollo audiences thoroughly enjoyed George Eban in the role of the Italian shopkeeper, beloved of man and beast.

There are many spots of delicate playing that got the audience a deal more than high emotional stuff. Eban is master of the human quality, and as the little Italian storekeeper who does some rare good work. He can turn the slightest situation to characterful significance that strikes the chord of understanding in the observer.

Have to Be Careful.

"Has woman a sense of humor?" asked the matter of fact man. "Oh, yes," replied Miss Cayenne. "But she has to curb it. If women laughed at everything they saw that's funny they would spoil efforts to propose by some really nice men."

Value of Simplicity.

Simple creatures, whose thoughts are not taken up, like those of educated people, with the cure of a great museum of dead phrases, are very quick to see the live facts which are going on about them.—O. W. Holmes.

NEWS NOTES FROM MOVIELAND

Douglas Fairbanks, recently took a vacation in the Carquinez woods in California. He had a thoroughly good time, as the picture would seem to indicate.

A most unusual and touching little tribute was recently paid Charles Chaplin's musical abilities by one of the employees of the studios in Los Angeles.

The comedian, waiting for the construction of a set, was wandering about the studio in his famous make-up playing, as he frequently does, a plaintive selection on his violin.

Unconsciously, he had chosen one of the popular Irish ballads, the strains of which serve to quicken the pulse of all loyal sons of Erin. As he neared the gate leading from the studio into the open air stage a staid Irish carpenter abandoned his task and stood listening until the last note had died away.

Then he returned to his work. As he passed one of his fellow workers he declared:

"Well, in the world does that fellow fall and tumble about for a living when he can play music like that?"

NO PUDDING FOR THAT MEAL

Miss Iva Shepard, movie star, invited friends to dinner at her house. For desert they were to have cornstarch pudding made from a recipe brought from Virginia.

The maid came in and said something was wrong with the pudding. She had found she was out of cornstarch in the kitchen at the last moment and explained she had made the pudding from cornstarch she found in a jar on the dressing table in the boudoir of the charming Miss Shepard.

There had been cornstarch in the jar, but a few days before the last had been used and Miss Shepard had refilled the jar with a special French powder that cost $2 a pound and was obtainable only at one place in New York.

VERY HARD SUBMARINE WORK

Germans Now Using Their Under-Sea Boats to Strew Mines for Enemy Warships.

Mines have always been laid in the sea by vessels especially equipped for that purpose. The warring powers of Europe have built submarines to kill, and destructive engines of warfare they have proved to be.

The Germans have recently utilized submarines for mine-laying. That report has not been true long, but as far as anyone can learn it is authentic. Laying mines by this means would not be impossible, and it is very probable that it is being done in war zone waters today. The mines themselves are carried on the submarine. A hollow, airtight compartment contains the mines; the chamber, or compartment, is vertical, and the mines are placed one above the other in the enclosure. The submarine then sails forth with its death-dealing load.

When the area designated for the mines is reached and a mine is to be laid, the mine-layers let water into the chamber. The door which seals the bottom of the chamber is in the exterior shell of the submarine's hull. This door is opened, and one after another the mines are liberated from their submarine prison. They are not simply dropped into the ocean as one might drop a stone; placing them properly takes care and skill and special appliances.

Each mine has its anchor, which goes to the bottom. The so-called "anchorage cable" is manipulated in such a way that it allows the mine to float from its anchor at a certain specified depth below the top of the water.

The complete secrecy insured by mine-laying in this method would appeal particularly to any belligerent, because the more secret mine-laying can be kept the more perilous it is to the foe.

Proper Way to Look on Life.

Take life like a man. Take it as though it was—as it is—earnest, vital, essential affair. Take it just as though you were born to the task of performing a merry part in it, as though the world had waited your coming. Take it as though it were a grand opportunity to achieve, to carry forward great and good schemes, to hold and to cheer a suffering, weary, it may be a heart-broken brother.—Charles H. Spurgeon.

AT BEVERLY THEATRE.

"The Witch" Tells a Story of Magic Power.

Few plays that are being filmed today carry such a powerful story as does "The Witch," in which William Fox presents Miss Nance O'Neil, America's greatest emotional actress, at the Beverly tonight. "The Witch" is based on Victorian Sardou's famous play, "The Sorceress." The plot is laid in Mexico and Frank Powell, the director of the picture, has spared neither time nor expense in order to surround his work with that atmosphere of color and romance that are so effective when properly presented.

This vehicle furnishes an endless playground for the wonderful emotional talents of Nance O'Neil. Throughout it abounds in strange and startling situations, which are lavishly and beautifully staged. Miss O'Neil is supported by a strong cast that sustains her wonderful work in every respect. The story abounds in thrills; it is of the red blood kind that sets the heart thumping. It is a continuous series of powerful situations in which love, romance, passion and intrigue are powerfully blended. It is laid in a rugged and romantic country, and nothing has been left undone to make this picture one of the greatest successes of the year.

AT THE APOLLO.

Mae Murray on Wednesday.

The little town of Bath, England, from which were taken the scenes of "Sweet Kitty Bellaairs," the Lasky-Belasko photodrama, which will be seen at the Apollo on Wednesday, with beautiful Mae Murray in the stellar role, was the famous watering place of society during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. At certain seasons of the year the wit and beauty of England assembled there to drink of the beautiful waters. Among some of the prominent visitors were Dr. Johnson, Lord Chesterfield, Pope, Oliver Goldsmith, Sheridan, Smollett, Chatham, Gainsborough, Fanny Burney, the Duchess of Devonshire, and many others.

AT BEVERLY THEATRE.

Anna Pavlova Tomorrow.

There has been a large demand for seats at the Beverly for Wednesday when Russia's dancer, Anna Pavlova, will appear on the screen in a massive spectacle, entitled "The Dumb Girl of Portici."

Anna Pavlova was asked why she had taken the screen call of the camera man, she answered in a manner characteristic of a world celebrity who takes the precaution to look before she leaps over the world simultaneously. "The reason I accepted the motion picture proposition is simple enough. I have not been seen in many places, and only in the largest cities of this country, while the smaller cities have never visited at all. In Europe I have appeared less frequently even than in America, while in many of the other nations I have never trod the boards of the stage."

"Naturally when I discovered that the motion picture art had developed as it has in the last two years, I was possessed with the desire to appear all over the world simultaneously. I felt, too, that I would immensely add to my fame and popularity. It is now possible for me to appear before seventy-five percent of the world's population within two years' time. What more could any ambitious artist desire?"

Moreover, does it not seem to you like that among the millions who will see me on the screen, many will be attracted later to the opera house.

where I will appear personally before the public?"

"Of course," continued Madame Pavlova, "one may succeed in achieving one goal, but if I fail in the new art it would have been far wiser had I never attempted it."

"On the other hand, I not only hope to succeed in achieving a triumph, but I am confident that the screen will reveal my art vastly enhanced."

Matinee at 2:30. Two shows at night, 7:30 and 9:00.

Keeping Baby Quiet.

One mother used a clever device to keep her ever-restless youngster from crawling away all the time. She got a large soft gray blanket and cut out gay designs from the nursery books, which she sewed on the blanket. The pictures were made of linen, from one of those linen children's books sold in all the shops. The bright pictures attracted the child's attention, and he would sit for hours looking at them and picking at them. A baby fence around the rug completed the outfit.

Indoor Life Makes Fat

TRY OIL OF KOREIN TO KEEP WEIGHT DOWN, OR TO REDUCE SUPERFLUOUS FATS.

People who are confined within doors and who are deprived of fresh, invigorating air and exercise must take precaution to guard against over-stress, as fat acquired by indoor life is unhealthy and a danger to the vital organs of the body. Lack of exercise in the fresh air is said to weaken the oxygen carrying power of the blood, so that it is unable to produce strong muscles and vitality and the formation of unsightly and unhealthy fat is the result.

If you are 15 or 20 pounds above normal weight you are daily drawing on your reserve strength and are constantly lowering your vitality by carrying this excess burden. Any persons who are satisfied in their own mind that they are too stout, or are advised to go to Smith Drug Co., or any good druggist and get a box of oil of korein capsules, and take one after each meal and one just before retiring at night.

Even a few days treatment has been reported to show a noticeable reduction in weight, improved digestion and a return of the old energy; footsteps become lighter and the skin less flabby in appearance as superfluous fat disappears.

Oil of korein is inexpensive, cannot injure and helps the digestion. Any person who wants to reduce 15 or 20 pounds is advised to give this treatment a trial.

Talk With Friend Convinced Her

Mrs. Barron Finds Health When She Uses New Medicine, Tanlac.

"For years," says Mrs. J. Barron of 306 Douglas Street, Green Bay, "I was subject to terrible pains in my side and back. These would be more severe if I did any work. You can imagine how unpleasant this must have been. I finally got in such a condition that I did not feel like doing anything. I was simply all run down. I felt listless and had no energy at all. My nervous system was upset and I was restless. I did not sleep well at all. I kept trying various tonics that were recommended to me but nothing helped. I was discouraged but I can tell you."

"One day a close friend said, 'If I were you I would give this new Tanlac a trial.' 'Oh, well,' said I, 'I have never found anything yet that would help me.' 'Tanlac has helped everybody who has taken it' replied my friend. 'It must be worth a trial. The upset of the whole thing was that I took Tanlac and got relief. I am in fine shape again for the first time in years. I can eat and sleep. I can work without noticing any discomfort. I am always glad to endorse Tanlac and never miss an opportunity of doing so.'"

Tanlac can be obtained here from Smith's Drug Store, 14 West Milwaukee St.

THE NEW CLARION

By...
WILL N.
HARBEN

Copyright, 1914, by Harper & Brothers

"What wouldn't they try it if offered Howard a chance of escape from the scaffold? They'd even pay money to get folks to testify ag'in somebody else."

"It's that! That! Oh, he's comin' to me!"

that they could throw the blame on. Let 'im alone in the future, Abe. Daniel belongs to one set o' folks an' you an' me to another. We mustn't give 'im a chance to fetch that pore girl's name into it if we kin help it. What was it he was axin' you so close about—I mean when he axed so particular about the last time you seed Craig alive?"

"I don't know. I don't remember."

"It seemed to me, Abe, as well as I could hear, that he got you tangled up a little. First you said the last time you laid eyes on Craig was here at the pigpen, an' next you said it was at the fence you was buildin'."

I knowed you was wrong about the pigpen statement, fer ef Craig had hid by here I would have seed 'im. Besides, he wouldn't ride so far out o' his way unless he had some 'ol powerful important to say. You see, Abe, darlin', right there you'd be in danger, fer you are sort o' wishy-washy an' careless in yore statements. If Daniel does summon you to testify about Susan an' Craig you'll have to be powerful careful, fer a sharp lawyer will do his level best to mix you up, an' when a body is under oath on the stand they have to know what they are talkin' about. You remember how helpless you was when you was convicted that time?"

Fulton rose clumsily to his feet. He stepped down outside and moved across the grass to the wash bench. Wondering over his unexpected silence, his wife followed, whispering softly to his side. The red light of the burning pine sticks in the chimney behind streamed out on the black forest in front of them. She put her hand on his arm and held it, but he said nothing. Suddenly he started, uttered a gasp and cried:

"Look! What's that comin' this way? It's a man on a horse! Great God—it's—"

"Tain't nothin'," the woman said as soothingly as if he were a child frightened by dreams. "It's jest 'yore fancy. I've been talkin' too much about it."

"It's that! That! Oh, he's comin' to me! God have mercy! Drive 'im off!"

"Don't be silly, Abe, sweetheart."

The woman put her arms around his neck. "It ain't nothin' but yore fancy. I've seed sights out o' the common my-sakin' so much about killin' an' hangin' an' the like that you are plum upset. Set down on the bench. It's cool here. I'll put up the things an' come back."

Obedient as a child might and trembling from head to foot, he sat down. She left him and went in to her work. She held a cup in fixed hands, stared into the fire and cried:

"Oh, my Lord! Lord have mercy! I understand it now. Pore, pore Abe!"

Lord, a mercy—have mercy—

Cora Langham greeted her mother affectionately on the return of the latter from a two day visit to Atlanta.

"How did you find the house?" Cora asked indifferently.

"Oh, all right, but the grass has suffered in the front yard. It looks dry and parched. I found out one particular thing that set my mind at rest."

"What was that, mother?"

"You know, I guess," Mrs. Langham replied. "Why, I found that we have not been connected in the slightest with that Howard Tinsley affair. Even your father did not mention it. I determined to see if people were talking, and found that not one word had been said. You know, if there was any gossip about this would have heard it and brought it straight to me; but I chatted with her fully an hour, and she didn't mention it. I let it worry me entirely too much. Very few happened to see the notice of Howard's visit, to us. Is there any fresh news about him?"

"Nothing particular," Cora answered. "Then he hasn't owned up yet?"

"No, and from what some of his best friends say he never will. Mother, you remember Mary Trumbley?"

"Yes, of course. What about her?"

"They say she is a most remarkable girl," Cora's eyes were now steadily probing her mother's face. "Frank Raymond was telling me about her. He can't talk of anything else. You know she went to work on Howard's paper, didn't you?"

"I think I heard you say something about it. But what of that?"

"The papers all around, even the big dailies, are saying her work is wonderful—simply wonderful. People here in town, too, and all through the country are admiring it. I've just been reading one of her editorials. I can tell which are hers. They really are good. The style is smooth, direct and beautiful. They are full of high ideals. Some are like essays of the best class. She—" mother, she has stuck to Howard from the first day of his great trouble. Frank Raymond says that there has not been a single issue of the paper which has not contained a strong article from her about—about the inhumanity of accusing a person falsely. He says—Frank says—that her articles are beginning to have a wonderful effect on public opinion. People are not so sure now that Howard has not told the truth all along. His friends—his true girl friends—are sending him flowers and notes of encouragement, and even strangers are writing him kind, hopeful letters."

"Well, that's all right," Mrs. Langham said coldly. "Even if he is found guilty at his trial it will be a comfort to Mary to know that she did so much for him."

"But he may not be found guilty. In fact, many now don't believe he will. They say that no guilty man could stand up as Howard is doing under such a charge and put such a brave face on the matter. They are reading what he writes and saying that his articles don't sound as if they came from a guilty person. It is all due to—to Mary Trumbley. She brought it about. Mother, most persons think money is an advantage in life. I begin to think it is a serious drawback. If Mary Trumbley had been a rich society girl an opportunity of this sort could not have come to her. I'd rather live on a farm at the foot of a mountain, as she does, and be able to do what she is doing than to marry a millionaire and live in a mansion in New York or London."

"Oh, boss!" Mrs. Langham sniffed. "Of course it is good for her to have such a talent, for that's all the poor girl has, and she deserves something to vary the monotony of her hard life. If I didn't think you had more sense than to do so I'd be afraid you were actually interested in Howard Tinsley."

"Why, mother?" Cora's glance sank, and her lips twitched. "Don't you know he is in love with Mary Trumbley?" she faltered. "He couldn't help it after—all that has taken place recently. As for me, he hates me—that's what he does; he hates me. I've never sent him a single word of encouragement. I was afraid, yore see, to stand by him. I suppose I am still a coward. He'd been a friend to me, but I'd deserted him the moment he got into trouble. You influenced me to do it, I had no will of my own—I haven't yet, as for that matter."

"I am unworthy. I wouldn't have turned against Howard Tinsley as I did if I had been worthy. I'll never be worthy till I can stand a test such as Mary Trumbley has stood; and such a chance may never come to me now."

Cora suddenly covered her face with her hands.

"Cora, dear, you alarm me—you really do," said Mrs. Langham. "You upset me frightfully," the mother slowly said. "I see it all. It is this trouble of Howard Tinsley's. You ought never to have met such a man as he. You are allowing your conscience to bother you in a silly, fanciful way. When you're entertained him at our house that day you showed us your desire not to admit other callers that you wanted him to yourself. You had never acted so with any other man. You were excited unduly. You wanted to make a good impression. I don't know what passed between you. I might have listened, but I was unable to do so without your knowing it, and—"

"I'll tell you," Cora uncovered her face and with piteous eyes stared straight at her mother. "That very visit separated me and him forever. He saw the sort of life I clung to, and if he had ever thought of marrying me he gave it up then. I saw it in his face—in his strong, manly face. I read his contempt for every bit of gaudy display we made that day."

"He had been holding off, I thought he was leaning to Mary Trumbley, and I resorted to that contemptible subterfuge. I thought—oh, I thought that perhaps when he saw me—well, as I live at home—he would—would be influenced as other men have been and—"

and declare himself."

"You are idealizing a very ordinary person," the mother declared. "If he had killed that man impulsively or, in anger he might deserve some little consideration, but the fact that he is deliberately lying to save his neck—"

"Don't, mother, don't!" Cora broke in. "I stick to it. I know what I am talking about. Down home yesterday I heard that Hamilton Quinby of this place, who stands at the top of his profession as a criminal lawyer, was at the Kimball House. Well, I confided in him to some extent. I did not compromise you; I simply hated at Howard's attentions to you and told him that I wanted to know if he thought Howard was guilty or not. Why, he actually laughed at the idea of Howard's innocence. He said, in confidence, that he had refused to defend Howard simply because of the absurd and fatal claim of innocence that he insisted on making."

"I don't believe he is guilty," Cora said sharply. "I don't care what Hamilton Quinby says. Really, mother, I am sick with shame at leaving him in the lurch. I may never have another chance to be a real woman. I've been tried and found wanting in moral courage; I have been forced to stand by and see a woman with more soul than I have obey God's holy law, while I was bound to things of the world."

CHAPTER XXIV.

Pleading For a Life.

A FEW evenings later Abner Daniel was walking after supper on the grass in front of Trumbley's house. It was his usual bedtime, but he had no inclination to sleep. Mary had been his companion for more than an hour, and they had been talking of their work and above all of Howard's trouble, but she had gone into the house, and he was facing the grim problem alone. Suddenly at the bend of the road he saw the blurred figure of a man come into view, pause for a moment and then move on toward him with what seemed to be an uncertain, hesitating step. Then, looking more closely, Abner recognized Abe Fulton. Seized by a sudden desperate impulse toward fresh activity, Abner stepped to the gate and, opening it, advanced boldly toward Fulton.

With a low grunt of fear and surprise the latter turned and was about to flee the spot when Abner uttered a soft, reassuring laugh. "Huh! I scared you," he chuckled. "I didn't mean to. Abe, I dropped my tobacco at the foot of that oak an' was down on my all fours rootin' about in the grass like a hog tryin' to find it. Which way are you headed at this time o' night? Late fer you to be out, ain't it?"

"I wasn't goin' nowhere," Abe replied hesitatingly.

"At the blacksmith's shop in the edge o' town this mornin' the feller that was blowin' the bellows, Abe, said you'd just passed along an' axed ef he'd seed me. Was it anything particular you wanted?"

Fulton blinaked helplessly.

"No, I—I didn't want nothin'," he said haltingly. "Nothin' at all. I was jest wonderin' ef you'd passed along. I—I—"

The voice died away.

Abe looked toward the full moon and stood stroking the bristling, week old beard on his chin.

"Oh, I'll bet you did want to see me," Abner said. "You are jest a little backward an' slow to come to a thing. Abe, I used to be that way myself till politics, tradin' hosses, an' one thing or other learnt me that it wouldn't do."

The man offered no denial, and of this Abner made a mental note.

"I did want to see you," he blurted out. "I hadn't been right in my mind here lately. Sometimes I don't know what I'm sayin' or doin'. My wife has noticed it an' called my attention to it several times."

"Ah, he is goin' to own up an' claim mental unsoundness," Abner reflected, while a sudden glow of hope suffused him. "He's sharp enough to know that it will strengthen his claim."

Then

about Fulton, he said: "A man sure accountable fer what he does when he's that way, Abe, especially ef he's all keyed up in pity over somebody bein' harmed or wronged—some helpless person that he hated to see suffer."

Fulton seemed so much absorbed over what he was now bent on saying that Abner's words fell on closed ears. "I was havin' one o' my worst spells 'tother evenin' when you was out lookin' fer yo' hoss. I'd been feelin' so bad that I drunk a lot o' whisky just 'fore you come. I thought that would clear up my mind, but I tuck too much. I drunk mighty nigh a pint, all told. I was jest gittin' under the influence of it when I was talkin' to you, an' after you left I was plum soaked. My wife overheard the ramblin' way I was talkin' to you, an' when I come in—or it was the next mornin', when my mind was clear—she told me—she told me she had never heard anybody say sech ridiculous things in 'er life."

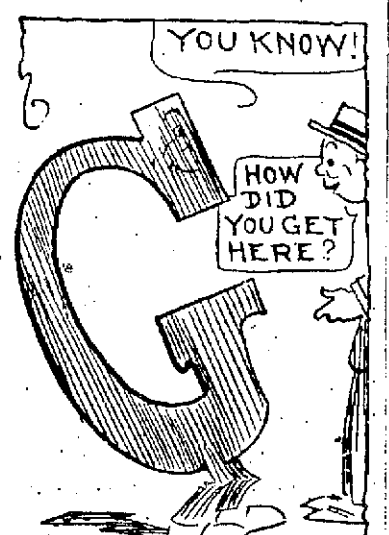

"Ridiculous?" Abner's heart sank in sheer dismay over the unexpected stand the man was taking. "Ridiculous? Did you say ridiculous, Abe?"

"Yes, an' I've been tryin' to remember what it was I did say that night. I think among other things, we talked about—about—"

"Yes, we talked about Craig an' Howard Tinsley," Abner went on fiercely for the course Fulton was taking had upset one of his best hopes. "You said you was sorry fer the boy—you said he'd done you favors, an' you seemed to think, though I didn't fully agree with you at the time, that Howard was tellin' the truth."

"I may have said it," Abe went on instantly, keeping his desperate gaze on a wheel cut rut in the road, which he was nervously kicking with the toe of his coarse shoe. "I don't git full often, but when I do I slobber over an' sometimes cry about the least thing. My wife said I cried about Howard when I got to bed after you left that night an' said he was bein' treated wuss'n a dog. That was odd, too, fer I don't know a thing about the case. I reckon Howard is as nice as the general run o' boys, but everybody knows he has a hot temper an' armed hisself an' went lookin' fer his man."

Dinner Stories

A glassmaker's van had drawn up at the curb, and a number of men took from it a large plate glass pane to be placed in a shop window. As they proceeded to the window, carefully bearing the pane of glass, the usual crowd stopped to watch. Among these people were a couple of young fellows, who appeared more interested than any one else.

After a while, wearying of the deliberateness of the men with the glass, one of the young men said to the other:

"Come, Bill, we might as well go along. They are not going to let it fall."

It was Lincoln's birthday and Miss Nichols, the teacher, was giving a talk on the hero of the day. Finally, one little fellow asked anxiously:

"Lincoln wasn't better than Santa Claus, was he?"

"Santa Claus is good and so was Lincoln. There's a great difference between their sorts of goodness," replied Miss Nichols automatically.

Peronne, Object of Allied Drive Is City Rich in Historic Lore

Peronne, the first important objective of the French and English forces when the allies' "big push" was inaugurated, and where the fighting is now centered, is described in today's war geography bulletin of the National Geographic society, as follows:

The important railway center of Peronne, rich with historic associations of ancient and medieval France, was a town of less than 5,000 people at the outbreak of the war, and it had little industrial or commercial significance, but for nearly three hundred years it bore an honored name de guerre, La Pucelle (The Impregnable) this distinction having been accorded it in 1566 when the courageous woman Marie Pource, also known as Catherine de Polix, successfully defended it against the imperial forces of Charles IX. The title "Impregnable" was dropped by the city in 1815, however, for in that year it was captured by the Duke of Wellington. Its name stands high among the cities of courage in the Franco-German war, during which it withstood a destructive bombardment of twelve days and only capitulated because the civil population was being decimated by an epidemic of smallpox.

The French maintained Peronne as a small military stronghold until ten years ago, when its fortifications were razed, but up to the time of the onward sweep of the Germans toward Paris in the summer of 1914, the four-story castle was still standing and visitors were shown the cell in which, in the tenth century, the unhappy French king, Charles the Simple, prisoner of Louis the Stammerer, was starved to death. Charles was kept a prisoner here by the treacherous Herbert, Count of Vermandois, who had promised to aid the sovereign against Rudolf, Duke of Burgundy.

Peronne was the scene of another act of treachery against a French ruler five hundred years later when the "bourgeois king", Louis XI, trusting to the diplomacy of Charles the Bold, the Duke of Burgundy, visited Charles the Bold, the Duke of Burgundy, at Peronne on a mission of reconciliation, there came the news of the supposed massacre of the bishop and ducal governor of Liege. The rumor was false, but Charles, suspecting Louis of double-dealing, threw the king in prison and kept him in a cage until he consented to sign the "Treaty of Peronne", insuring all "Flanders freedom from the jurisdiction of the parliament in Paris. This episode was the most humiliating episode in Louis' life, for the people of Picardy taught their towns and villages to cry "Peronne" and "Perette" in derision of the sovereign. Thereafter, Louis determined to find a scapegoat, and Cardinal Jean Balue was the unhappy victim. Balue fled and joined Harcourt, bishop of Verdun, in revolt. Both were captured and Balue was kept a prisoner for eleven years while Harcourt was confined in an iron cage like a wild beast for thirteen years.

The history of Peronne goes back to the days of the Frankish king Clovis II, who owned a villa here and who gave it to his mayor of the palace, Erchinoaldus, founder of the monastery of St. Fursy in the seventh century. It received its charter from the French crown in 1208.

"The town is situated on the Somme river, 94 miles by rail north of Paris, and 35 miles east of Amiens. It is twenty miles by rail east of Fricourt, one of the first villages taken by the British in their offensive which began on the first day of July."

Public-spirited women in Red Cross workroom making bandages for soldiers in Mexico and on border.

Since the issuing of the order calling the national guard into the federal service large numbers of women have volunteered their services to the Red Cross in all the principal cities of the country. These women spend many hours a day making bandages and other necessities for field hospital work and do not seem to tire of their tasks. Among the women engaged in this work are many prominent society debutantes and matrons who wish to "do their bit" to aid the fighting men on and beyond the Rio Grande.

CARUSO MAY BE CALLED TO THE ITALIAN COLORS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Florence, Italy, July 11.—Should the war endure another year, Enrico Caruso probably will be called to the Italian colors. The singer today is back recuperating at his summer villa in the Florentine suburbs.

Caruso belongs to the class of '73. The men of '73 are under arms. Certain in-between classes even now are waiting and preparing for the call. The tenor had a touch of war on his recent voyage from America. He sailed on a French liner, which during the last day of its journey to Bordeaux was busy avoiding German submarines.

RUSSIA'S VAST TIMBERLAND.

A recent official estimate in the timberlands of Russia shows that the total amount of standing timber is almost equal to that of the United States and Canada combined, about 1,006,124,000 acres, not inclusive of unsurveyed lands. A comparatively small proportion of this timberland has been exploited. Among the many new railroads which are now building several are designed for the exploitation of the timber country. The department of canals and waterways is also actively engaged in furthering this industry.

SOMEONE MUST HAVE DONE SOMETHING TO OKLAHOMA

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, July 11.—Oklahoma's fame in England is in the primitive stage, according to the geographical expert of a London newspaper.

Printing an account of a cyclone which demolished a portion of Kemp City, Okla., the "expert" appended a footnote to the item to tell his readers something about Oklahoma. The footnote:

"Oklahoma is an American territory adjoining that of Kansas in the Northeast of Texas and its chief town has only a population of 5,000."

BRITISH HOARD AMERICAN BACON AND BOOST PRICES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

London, July 11.—American bacon is being hoarded in England to inflate the price to the consuming public. It is charged today by the Liverpool Post.

The paper says that if the stocks of bacon at present in storage in Liverpool were offered for sale in normal quantities the retail price would drop to between 16 and 18 cents a pound.

Good bacon now costs the average citizen 32 cents a pound.

Huge quantities are being shipped to Liverpool, the story states, and they are being kept out of the market for no other reason than to send up prices.

There are in Liverpool and Bootle (nearly) about a dozen large cold storages and practically all of these

SMELL OF COOKING GREENS

This Little Weed Makes Appetizing Dish That Reminds Man of Childhood Days.

The story is told (how true we cannot say) of an American who, while living abroad, found himself without money. The thought occurred to him that, since human nature is the same the world over, if he could originate a new food which should tickle the palate and become popular, his fortune would be made. He forthwith set to work and shortly the public was informed of a new and perfectly delicious salad. It was tasted, approved, eagerly sought after, and presto, the man who originated it became a millionaire. What was this wonderful paw dish? Dandelion salad, if you please. It was garnished and flavored, and withal was so pliant that no one recognized the common weed so ruthlessly trodden underfoot, or ignominiously pulled by the ears by that same American when at home.

We love the dandelion. There is a tender spot in our hearts for this bright, cheery flower, which lifts its golden eye steadfastly to the sun and braves with undaunted courage our most inclement weather. The dandelion carries us back to childhood as no other flower in the garden, however beautiful. To see it every springtime is to turn the key "in memory's wards." The smell of the dish of dandelion greens cooking is more fragrant to our nostrils than all the spices of Arabia the blest. They transport us to the old New England home and the old New England kitchen.—Countrywide Magazine.

SOCIETY DISPLAYS BATHING SUITS AND OTHER THINGS AT ATLANTIC CITY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Atlantic City, N. J., July 11.—Creations in bathing suits that would turn a Paris model's seven shades of green with envy is the aquatic style introduced with a low bow and a lower neck to Atlantic City's fashionable bather by society women today. They are as gorgeous, thin and carefully fitted as a cerise stocking. The sleeves stop before they begin and the skirts very soon thereafter. That is far above the knees. Far. This is to enable the girls to swim easily. Maybe one of them will try it some day.

SOX UPSET BOSTON; WIN TWO, 4-0, 3-0

Reb Russell and Claude Williams Turn Tables on Red Sox as Chicagoans Take Third Place.

Reb Russell and Claude Williams and their White Sox mates threw an awful jolt into the defense of the world's champion Red Sox at Boston yesterday, and for about three hours the American league pennant visions of the Beantown aggregation were shattering. The Sox won both contests of the afternoon's bit, and both were whitewashes for Boston. The first ended 4-0, while the second was 3-0. In addition to this the White Sox moved into third place. And still another add: a Cleveland Indian pitcher pinch hit for Boston's home run yesterday, beat the Yankees 3-2, and as a result kept the Sox from climbing into second place.

Chicago and Boston play another double header at Boston today. If the Sox repeat and New York defeats Cleveland, then the Sox will go into a tie with Cleveland for second berth. Boston drew a pair from Williams and but a pair from Russell. The only Red Sox man to reach second during the two games was Gainer, who poked out a long one after two men were down in the ninth. Leonard, Gregg and Jones, used by the Reds in the first game, were touched for eight hits by the Sox, and in the second game May awarded nine. Not a man walked during the two games.

BOSTON SOUTHPAW DEFEATS CUBS IN 4-3 GAME MONDAY

Frank Allen, the Boston southpaw, the fourth left-handed pitcher the Cubs have met in as many days, evened up the score for what the Cubs did to him Friday and white-washed the Chicagoans at the Windy City yesterday, 4 to 0. Tinker's crew at no time was the Braves' twister in danger. Off his delivery the Cubs got but four hits, while Boston drew double this number from Pendergast.

Willie Davis, the clay-court tennis champ, is going after the national singles title and in doing so will have to learn the grass-court game. All the big eastern tournaments are played on turf and in California tennis is a clay-court affair entirely. Most of the western stars who have gone east have learned the game all over again in many ways when they tackled the grass-courts. The ball does not bound as briskly on grass of course, and a fast back-court game is not possible. It's quite likely that Davis will get the stride of grass-courts, however, and make things hot for William Johnston.

HE'LL STAY IN BIG SHOW AT ANY COST

George Baumgartner.

George Baumgartner, pitching with the St. Louis Browns, will stay in the big leagues all his life if he can manage it. Recently Baumgartner was told to report at Little Rock, but he took a contract at about one-fourth the price to remain with St. Louis. Baumgartner is potentially one of the best pitchers in the game, but he is overburdened with temper.

MORRIS MILLER

Chick Gandil recently pulled a new one in Cleveland that he's called the "sliding glove." He had an injured hand that he didn't want to take any chances with and so he wrapped it carefully in a glove that would not hinder him in getting onto the base. It may be remembered by some that this is not a thoroughly new idea, as Thomas wore a sliding glove when he was playing with the Phillies that covered not only his hand but his arm well up his wrist.

Joe Jackson said something about trying to make a batting record this season when things started up in the spring and quite a few saw him the night. But from the looks of things lately Joe is going to come through. He has put over a few very neat batting records, such as a hit every time for eight straight trips to the plate and ten out of fourteen times at bat. It looks like Joe's spring talk was not all bull.

Fred Beebe, the well advertised comeback wonder, comments on Clark Griffith's remark that a pitcher never knows anything about his business till he has pitched away his arm. "I am a living example of that little observation," said Fred recently. "Ten years ago I was pitching fast ball in the National league and was thought then to be at my best. I had a peach of a round-house curve that worked all the time. A few years went by and my arm went with them. I drifted into the minors and found I had to use my nut to get results. More brains and less arm. I haven't the mechanical stuff I had when I was a kid, but I have the pitcher's nut on me, which is just better." Beebe was always a smart twister and in these days is getting by mostly with his brain work.

Buck Herzog, a bit with the fans of Cincinnati, came what may not long ago he played too soon after an illness that had kept him out of several games and he fainted away on the bench. But he came to and insisted on staying through the game. He appears to believe, just as most Cincy fans do, that without him the team would be hopeless and helpless.

The Giants have signed Charlie Way of Yale and George Smith of Columbia, both of them said to be very fine young right-handed slappers. Way has the biggest rep of the two and is an all-round athlete as well. Smith is known to look like a world-beater. Funny thing that Connie Mack didn't pluck off these two.

The Boston Braves are willing to be rid of Pete Compton. He's an outfielder and the Braves already have some eight outfielders and are in no pressing need of Compton. Anyway, he hasn't done anything very clever since he's been with the team except to sew them up on a nice fat contract.

The report that Tom Hughes had a record for all the leagues in pitching 15 2-3 innings without giving a hit, must have stirred Fred Toney's wrath. Toney can prove that he pitched seven entire innings all in one game and didn't allow a hit. And there have been minor league pitchers to do better than Hughes.

They're even willing to cut down the attendance at the Polo Grounds if it will help the Giants win. It seems that John McGraw has determined to have a light green screen in the outfield at a point where it will give the batters a good background, and let them get a better glimpse of the ball. This will close a good part of the center-field bleachers to customers, but anything to perk up the Giants batting.

Everyday Wisdom

By DON HEROLD

MOTHS

A moth has absolutely no regard for expenses; no domestic animal in creation has such extravagant tastes; it is selfish; it thinks only of personal aggrandizement; and why anybody wants willingly to keep a moth around and pamper and indulge it in its gormandizing, is quite beyond the understanding of sensible people. Only wealthy women without children may be excused for adopting a moth to raise—they can afford it, and perhaps the moth fills a place in their hearts—but even they should be made to muzzle their moths when they go to their homes for a call and hang your coat in the hall; otherwise your coat is just as apt as not to be half eaten when you are ready to depart.

Moths are not much on sociability. They are of a retiring nature, and prefer the solitude and retirement of a closet full of fine clothes to the limelight and excitement of the family circle. That is another thing that you hate about a moth, it seems rather sneaking, rather than open and above board. A moth never asks for what it wants. Forcibly, we see nothing lovable in a moth. A moth will eat $500 worth of furs and never mention it to you. A moth eats everything but clothes hooks.

The ammunition factories work night and day turning out mothballs, and still the moths ply their nefarious jaws, eating entire attics bare, and eating kitchen aprons and seal-skin kimonos with equal avidity, whatever that is. You can shoot mothballs at a moth all summer and turn your back for half an hour and the moth will gnaw a "V" out of your coat tail while you are not looking they are that vicious.

SOME WORDS ABOUT EMETINE

Medical Journal Says Care Must Be Exercised in Using Poon for Treating Pyorrhea.

The great increase in the use of emetine hydrochloride in the treatment of pyorrhea and in amoebic dysentery makes timely a warning by the Journal of the American Medical Association to the effect that the preparations of this drug now on the market vary widely in their strength, and that at least one reputable manufacturer is "supplying a product so unusually toxic as to prohibit its use, at any rate in anything approaching the ordinary dose."

This warning is based upon two cases at Johns Hopkins medical clinic in which symptoms of poisoning and in one instance death resulted from the administration of emetine hydrochloride in the usual way. As a result of these, Drs. R. L. Levy and L. G. Rowntree analyzed specimens of the drug and found the variations noted. This is all the more important in view of the many quacks who are advertising "cures" for pyorrhea, most of which consist of emetine.

A word to the wise—to those who advertise. Use want ads every day; our word for it, they'll surely pay.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, Tuesday, July 11, 1876.—The weather is now highly respectable since its high-toned career last week.

The reports from the country indicate that the crops sustained very serious damage by the recent heavy storms.

Christ church (Episcopal) has recently undergone a thorough painting, which has much improved its general appearance.

The Court street grade will be commenced in a short time and the work pushed to an early completion. Then let the Court street people rejoice.

A span of horses hitched to a light wagon came near getting up an exciting runaway last evening in front of Smith & Bostwick's store. They broke loose, became frantic and started for a smashup, when they were caught by J. M. and R. M. Bostwick and brought to a halt.

Dr. N. Finch, who was severely kicked by a horse last Friday afternoon, is lying in a very critical condition. This morning his symptoms were very bad and his wounds seemingly growing worse.

The engine and the wreck of thirteen or fourteen freight cars are still lying in the washout four miles below the city on the Northwestern road.
